

5 REASONS TO ENABLE TRANSACTION MOBILE CREDENTIAL ON YOUR CAMPUS

1 | Transaction Mobile Credential is secure, cashless, and contactless. Here's how it works:

Students add the NFC-enabled mobile credential to their Apple Wallet, Google Wallet or Samsung Wallet

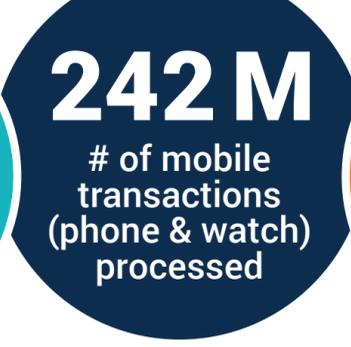

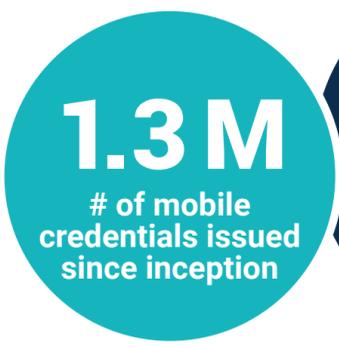

They tap their phone near the POS or access control device

That's it! It can be used for purchase and payment transactions and secure access control

2 | Students have overwhelmingly embraced it

Support the sustainability generation: Eliminate the need for a plastic card and save 5.2 tons of plastic cards from being printed or thrown in the garbage.*

3 | Students expect a mobile-centric experience

"You can use mobile credentials for everything. It was a no-brainer to offer a frictionless experience for students on campus."
 - Melissa Battle, University Program Specialist, University of North Carolina at Charlotte

"There is an art and science to enrollment management. It's very competitive. As the world is shifting to be more technologically advance, students more and more are expecting the next thing."
 - Dr. Penny Elkins, Senior VP for Enrollment Management, Mercer University

"This allows them to have easy access to facilities, dining, printing, and purchases. We look forward to bringing our Maroon Card technology to the next level!"
 - Terri Fox, Roanoke's Chief Information Officer, Information Technology

"The new mobile credential technology serves as a highly visible example to show prospective students that Benedictine is committed to utilizing the most innovative technology to meet and serve their needs."
 - Chad Treisch, Chief Operations Officer, Benedictine University

4 | 24/7 Virtual card offices become a reality

Mobile credential allows ID offices to offer 77% more hours for students to get ID cards*
